

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

Transcutaneous immunization system delivers antigen to immune cells through topical 5 application, and induces an antigen-specific immune response in an animal or human. The improvement involve a system for marking the successful delivery of the immunization using indicators or using marking systems to allow better application of the patch to a prepared skin surface.